AMPTC opens meeting in Taif

TAIF, Sept. 19 (SPA) — Shareholding countries in the Arab Maritime Petroleum Transport Company will bear the losses in operating capital in proportion to their shareholding, the company's general assembly decided Tuesday.

Speaking after the meeting here of oil ministers of members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC), which own the company, Petroleum Governor Dr. Abdul Hadi Taher said that AMPTC had suffered considerable losses because of the decline in world tanker charter rates.

For this reason, a reconsideration of the company's operations had become necessary.

To prevent further loss through idle tonnage, the ministers decided that company tankers should receive privileges and preferential terms from member countries, Dr. Taher said.

Further, company tankers should be available for charter at competitive rates.

"There can be no laws guaranteeing a profit for the company," Dr. Taher said. "But there can be privileges for it based on commercial and competitive principles."

The opening session at the Hada Sheraton Hotel was chaired by Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmad Zaki Yamani. The ministers met for one hour Tuesday morning in a closed session before being joined by their delegations.

After the morning session, Sheikh Ali Al-Khalifa Al-Sabah the Kuwaiti oil minister, told reporters that he was confident that the present crisis in the world tanker market would pass shortly and that the company would emerge from its financial difficulties.

He added that the company could certainly diversify its sources of revenue but he hoped its major activity would remain that for which it was created.

Kingdom: Summit results unacceptable

RIYADH, Sept. 19 (SPA) — Saudi Arabia believes the results of the Camp David summit do not constitute an acceptable formula for definitive peace in the Middle East, according to an official statement issued here Tuesday night.

The statement, issued after an extraordinary session of the Saudi Cabinet chaired by King Khaled and attended by Crown Prince Fahd and Defense Minister Prince Sultan, said the formula was unacceptable because "it did not make absolutely clear Israel's intention to withdraw from all Arab territories it occupies, including Jerusalem."

The statement, which reiterated the Kingdom's commitment to the Algiers and Rabat summit resolutions, said the Camp David accords had also failed to record "the right of the Palestinian people in self-determination and in setting up their own state in their homeland and on their own soil."

The agreement also "ignored the role of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) which Arab summit conferences have recognized as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinians," it added.

"In spite of its reservations, the Saudi government does not consider that it has a right to interfere in the internal affairs of any Arab country or to oppose such country's right to regain its lost territories by way of armed struggle or through peaceful efforts as long as these do not contradict the Arab interests," the statement added.

The statement praised President Carter for his efforts in trying to bring about a Middle East peace.

It said Saudi Arabia's decision was based on the country's deep commitment to its Islamic and Arab principles and to the decisions of Arab summit conferences.

It described the present stage as critical for the Arab world and called for a collective Arab stand which would lead to victory.

Jordan Tuesday night also criticized the outcome of the summit in its first reaction to the new agreements between Egypt and Israel.

A statement issued after a three-hour cabinet meeting at which King Hussein presided said Jordan would not be bound by agreements it had not helped to negotiate.

The United States is making an intensive diplomatic effort to secure Jordanian support for the Israeli-Egyptian peace pledges.

The cabinet statement said Jordan's position remained that a comprehensive solution was required, tackling all aspects of the Palestinian issue and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

It criticized plans for Egypt and Israel to sign a peace treaty within three months.

The statement said: "The dissociation of any of the Arab parties from the responsibilities of the collective action to reach a just and comprehensive solution providing for the recovery of Palestinian legitimate rights, as well as Arab rights, constitutes a weakening of the Arab stand and the chances of reaching a just and comprehensive solution."

The government said Israel would have to return all occupied Arab territories including the West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip and restore Arab sovereignty over Arab Jerusalem.

Before the meeting, King Hussein talked by telephone to Crown Prince Fahd and President Hafez Assad of Syria, official sources said.

Details of the conversations were not released but were believed to have dealt with a trip to all three countries by U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to canvass support for the peace agreements.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat Tuesday threatened U.S. interests in the Middle East and vowed to continue the guerrilla war against Israel.

In his first public statement on the Camp David accords, Arafat said they were the latest stage in a conspiracy against the Arabs, but that the Palestinian revolution would emerge stronger than ever.

CHAIRS CABINET: King Khaled Tuesday night chairs the extraordinary session of the Saudi cabinet which criticized the Camp David summit results.

Arafat was addressing a rally in Damour, 20 kilometers south of Beirut to mark the graduation of about 50 commandos.

In a militant speech, the Palestinian chief said: "I say to Carter he will pay for this through his interests in the area. When he hits us, we will strike him twice."

Arafat compared the Camp David accords with secret deals between French colonialists and the British.

Nicosia inmates end siege, free hostages

NICOSIA, Sept. 19 (AP) — Rightwing extremists, foiled in an attempt to break out of Nicosia's central prison, surrendered unconditionally Tuesday after a three-day siege and released their seven hostages unharmed, a police official said.

The nine prison insurgents and the fiancée of their leader gave up without a fight and were taken into custody by police chief Savvas Antoniou, the official said.

The hostages — three prison guards and four policemen — had fearful reunions with their families. Several, showing the effects of their ordeal, collapsed into the arms of their wives.

Two hours before the surrender a number of shots had rung out from the besieged cellblock holding the jailed members of the EOKA-B underground. But apparently no one was wounded.

Police immediately began removing explosives they had imposed outside the cellblock in the event of an assault.

The insurgents reportedly had threatened to kill their hostages unless given safe conduct out of the country.

But Cyprus' president Spyros Kyprianou refused to yield to "blackmail by prison terrorists" just as he had remained adamant against the demands of EOKA-B terrorists who had kidnapped his eldest son, Achilles, last December.

The 31-year-old leader of the break out attempt, Vassos "the doctor" Pavlides, also was suspected of masterminding the kidnapping.

The handsome, one-time medical student was jailed last April along with 13 other EOKA-B members suspected of illegal arms trafficking and of plotting sabotage acts against the state.

Ironically, Achilles Kyprianou was a commander of one of the National Guard units cordoning off the prison during the siege.

Will visit Amman, Damascus

Vance due in Riyadh Thursday

By Bob Lebling
Washington Office
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will arrive in Riyadh Thursday afternoon to brief Saudi leaders on the Camp David accords, the two-day stopover will be the longest of his current Middle East tour, which also includes Syria and Jordan.

The secretary was expected to arrive in Amman Wednesday afternoon for talks with King Hussein. He will try to convince the Jordanian leader to join the Middle East peace process under the terms of the Camp David agreements signed Sunday night by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Saturday morning the secretary leaves for Damascus, where he will spend "some hours" briefing President Hafez Assad and his advisers, the State Department said.

Vance will fly back to the U.S. Saturday afternoon.

In contrast to Vance's expected tough task, Sadat and Begin Tuesday faced the much easier job of explaining their two signed accords to an overwhelmingly enthusiastic United States Congress.

Both men appeared before the Senate foreign relations and house international relations committees.

After a closed meeting with a large group of U.S. senators, Sadat publicly congratulated President Carter for his quick action on sending Vance to the Middle East.

The two Camp David documents provide for a comprehensive framework for peace in the Middle East and a separate Egypt-Israel peace treaty within three months if the issue of Israeli settlements in the Sinai can be resolved.

However, the mood of triumph that swept the U.S. capital with the "successful end" of the Camp David summit meeting was tempered with concern as Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the American Congress Tuesday that Israel has no intention of giving up its claim to sovereignty or its right to station troops in disputed areas of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Begin told leaders of the House of Representatives in a breakfast meeting that they should not misinterpret the Camp David accords to mean that Israel has committed itself to restoring Arab sovereignty to those lands, which it occupied in the 1967 war.

Begin commented as he and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat visited Capitol Hill to meet with congressional leaders and talk about the recently concluded summit.

The two leaders planned to meet separately with President Carter at the White House Tuesday afternoon.

Begin stressed in interviews that there are no provisions in the accords for Israel to withdraw totally from the West Bank, even after the proposed five-year transition period toward Palestinian self-government.

Begin also said Israel will never give up an undivided Jerusalem as its capital.

Asked in an interview whether he thought Egypt could agree to this, he replied: "That's the problem."

Jordan's King Hussein is the key to any future West Bank settlement because under the Camp David proposals Jordan should join with Israel and the Palestinians in the interim administration of the territory.

Despite Vance's visit, Syria still plans to hold a summit of hard-line Arab states in Damascus to denounce the Camp David agreements.

Unless the U.S. can secure some kind of support from Jordan and Saudi Arabia such a move would leave Sadat isolated.

Vance will be accompanied by special Middle East negotiator Alfred Atherton and possibly other officials who took part in the Camp David summit, the State Department said later.

Spokesman Hodding Carter said Vance would seek the support of Jordan and Saudi Arabia for the Camp David agreements. But he said Damascus was not "a negotiating stop." Vance's mission would be simply to explain the agreements.

Meanwhile the Egyptian cabinet, expressing full support for Sadat, said Tuesday the Camp David agreements had given all Arab "confrontation states" an opportunity to regain land occupied by Israel.

The official Middle East News Agency (MENA) quoted a cabinet statement as saying: "The Camp David agreement has assured the achievement of Arab objectives focused on regaining the occupied territories and restoring the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and their right to determine their own future."

In an apparent reference to Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

Death toll rises to 16,000 in Iran

TEHRAN, Sept. 19 (Agencies) — As rescue teams Tuesday dug out more bodies from Iran's worst earthquake disaster, the official death toll rose to 16,000.

And rescue workers themselves became casualties when a transport plane engaged in relief operations crashed, killing nine persons.

The four-engined Hercules aircraft crashed and burst into flames as it came in to land at Tehran's main air base to pick up food supplies for quake victims in the devastated town of Tabas.

Four persons on board survived, the dead included a two-star air force general and two women civilians.

The official Pars news agency reported that the death toll in the quake in northeastern Khorassan province was 16,000.

The Red Lion and Sun, Iran's equivalent of the Red Cross, said 5,000 bodies had been recovered in Tabas in several surrounding villages by dusk Monday.

Officials said the number of dead could reach 20,000.

Whatever the final toll, it is sure to be the highest in Iran's history, exceeding the 13,000 persons killed in another quake in Khorassan province in 1968.

Tabas, an oasis town on the edge of the Great Kavir Desert, was flattened by the quake late Saturday night about 11,000 of the town's 13,000 inhabitants were killed.

In London Prime Minister James Callaghan has sent a message of sympathy to the Shah of Iran on the earthquake, an official spokesman said.

The message offered "deepest condolences for the tragic loss of life caused by the earthquake."

It also asked if there was any way the British government could help in the emergency.

Italy MPs seek action on Sadr

ROME, Sept. 19 (Agencies) — Members of parliament from Italy's three major parties asked the government Tuesday to try to shed some light on the disappearance of Imam Musa Sadr, the spiritual leader of Lebanon's Shiite community.

The Imam was reported by the Libyan government to have left Tripoli on a flight for Rome Aug. 31 after a week's visit to Libya.

The Italian parliamentarians, members of the Christian Democrat, Communist and Socialist Parties, said Sadr's name was on the passenger list of the Alitalia flight. They asked the government to ascertain whether he had actually gotten off the plane and his movements after that.

Saudi broadcaster declares

World must be shown true Arab picture

RIYADH, Sept. 19 (SPA)—The efficiency of Arab media should be improved to give the world an honest picture of Arab society, a Saudi broadcaster said Tuesday.

Speaking after the closing session of a committee of the Arab Broadcasting Federation on programs, Hussein Muhammad Al-Askari, director of Jeddah radio said that delegates had shown a real desire for cooperation between Arab television and broadcasting systems toward this end.

Askari said a sub-committee had been formed of delegates from Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Morocco, Iraq and Libya to prepare the groundwork for the production of the proposed "Arab Society" radio and "Greater Homeland" TV programs for broadcast from Arab television and radio stations. Muhammad Al-Mansour, director of Riyadh Radio was elected chairman of the sub-committee.

A second committee has been formed to study medium and short-wave broadcasting for an international administrative conference in the middle of 1978.

The committee for the exchange of TV news Tuesday discussed the establishment of an Arab network, to be based in Kuwait, for news sharing between Arab countries by satellite.

Askari said that the committee discussed the costs of the project which was approved by seven Arab states at a meeting of the Arab Coordination Council in Amman last December.

The recommendations will be submitted to the federation's general assembly next Sunday.

The United Arab Emirates will participate in the Gulf Television Council meetings to be held in Riyadh next October. It was announced in Abu Dhabi Tuesday by Information and Culture Undersecretary Abdullah Al-Nouei.

The council will discuss the budget and its work in the future.

Israelis planning series of ventures with Egypt

JERUSALEM, Sept. 19 (R) — With the ink on the Camp David agreements barely dry, Israeli officials are already planning a series of joint economic projects with their erstwhile enemy.

Most of the proposed ventures, ranging from nuclear power plants to a nature reserve, were first drawn up during the euphoric period following President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem last November.

A spokesman in Prime Minister Menachem Begin's office said Tuesday that strong economic links between Egypt and Israel would be a natural development which "will benefit both our lands."

The most daring plans are those of Israeli Energy Minister Yitzhak Mordechai, who wants to build two nuclear power stations in the Sinai desert and set up a joint company to exploit the region's oil deposits.

Modai told reporters the United States would probably be willing to help finance a joint nuclear energy project, which would require an investment of billions of dollars.

He said Israel had discovered a new oil field in the Gulf of Suez, near a-Tur, a coastal town in occupied Sinai. A joint oil company could continue the search, build refineries, and lay pipelines for natural gas, Modai added.

An official at the ministry of commerce, Amos Mar-Haim, claimed a proposal was being drawn up to establish a Middle East common market, consisting of Israel, Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Iran and Sudan.

Sinai's huge untapped resources of underground water could help convert large tracts of the desert into farmland, where crops such as cotton, peanuts and vegetables would flourish, according to the water authority here.

But Israel's Nature Protection Society has a different idea. "We have a plan to convert the area into the world's largest nature preserve — as a symbol of Israeli-Egyptian amity," a spokesman said.

$500m for Israeli airbases

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (UPI) — The United States may have to spend a minimum $500 million to build two air bases for Israel in the Negev desert as replacements for the four fields which it has promised to give up in the Sinai.

A well informed source estimated the minimum cost for a single replacement air field at $250 million. Each field could cost more depending on the sophistication of the equipment to be installed, the source said.

The air fields would include all-weather air strips protected to make them resistant to mortar attack.

Cairo calling Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV, Sept. 19 (R) — Civilian telephone links between Israel and Egypt have been restored after a break of six months.

The Israeli army radio station got a call through to a Cairo newspaper Monday night via Athens.

But direct communications are still not available.

A direct telephone link was established for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem last November, but it was later closed down by the Egyptian authorities.

Carter for peace prize

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — Resolutions proposing that President Carter be awarded the Nobel Peace prize for his Middle East peace efforts were introduced Monday in both Houses of Congress.

The Senate resolution, introduced by Delaware Republican William Roth, supported the Camp David summit agreements and placed the Senate on record as favoring the Nobel award to Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

"I think he (Carter) richly deserves a Nobel peace for devoting his time and energy to a task that is so useful to the people of the Middle East and so important to the cause of world peace," Roth said.

Settlers move near Nablus

TEL AVIV, Sept. 19 (AP) — About 50 Jewish settlers moved into an area south of Nablus in the Israeli-occupied region on the West Bank of the Jordan river Monday night to protest the disbanding of such settlements which may follow the Camp David agreements.

The move was planned secretly on Monday by the extremist group called Gush Emunim "Bloc of the Faithful." It was carried out between midnight and dawn.

Israel radio reported Tuesday that Israeli security forces patrolling the area did not stop the settlers and closed the paths leading to the area only after the new occupants had moved in.

Envoys in D.C. face tightening of immunity law

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — A bill limiting the legal immunity available to diplomatic missions in the United States was sent to President Carter on Monday.

The bill would not abandon the principle that representatives of foreign governments can not be prosecuted or sued in civil actions. It would, however, tighten the definition of diplomatic personnel, thus ending the special status enjoyed by many embassy employees.

Backers of the measure say the United States has been far more lenient in the matter of diplomatic immunity than most other countries and that the bill would bring this country's practice in line with general standards.

There have been complaints, especially in Washington, of abuse of privileges by persons enjoying diplomatic status. Some embassy employees use the immunity to avoid paying bills, traffic tickets or damages, although other embassies are scrupulous in paying such obligations.

The bill would require diplomatic personnel to carry liability insurance and provide that persons with claims can sue the insurance company directly instead of the immune diplomat.

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Agencies) — BP and Shell told Sir Harold Wilson of their swap arrangements with Total for supplying oil to Rhodesia via subsidiaries in South Africa in the late 1960s, says the Bingham report on sanctions busting. Edward Heath also condoned the supplies while prime minister.

Although maintaining a $380 million naval blockade of Beira, Sir Harold's government, earlier responsible for United Nations sanctions, took no action on the South African connection because of the risk of antagonizing one of Britain's best trading partners.

The report, by barrister Thomas Bingham, was published Tuesday. It had been sent to the Director of Public Prosecutions in case of possible criminal proceedings against the companies.

Bingham reports that Shell and BP, 51 per cent state-owned, delivered more than 14 million barrels of oil and oil products, directly or indirectly

Solzhenitsyn ends tax row in Switzerland

ZURICH, Sept. 19 (R) — Nobel Prize winner Alexander Solzhenitsyn settled his Swiss tax problems Monday for $90,000 — a small fraction of the $2.5 million claim lodged by the Zurich authorities last year.

Zurich tax collectors decided that the exiled Russian author had overlooked some of his tax liability, but they accepted that he had acted in good faith and done no wrong, the writer's lawyers said.

The dispute concerned money which went to charity, for which tax exemption is strictly limited under Zurich law.

The writer had renounced all royalties on "The Gulag Archipelago" in advance and, under Monday's settlement, Zurich accepted that he owed no taxes on the money.

through affiliates in South Africa or Portuguese Mozambique, to Rhodesia between 1966 and 1975.

By 1967, the report says, the British government began to suspect that oil from British companies was being diverted to Rhodesia through what Wilson later described as "dubious dealers." As a result, Shell and BP used a jointly-owned subsidiary in Mozambique to make a deal with Total, backed by the French government, about February 1968.

Total took over the Shell-BP orders from Rhodesia and Shell and BP delivered a matching quantity of oil to points designated by Total. That was when Wilson was told.

The Royal naval blockade of Mozambique did nothing to stop tankers unloading at Lourenco Marques, Mozambique's capital, where the oil was shipped to Rhodesia by rail via South Africa or by road.

The swap deal between the British and French companies was replaced in the early 1970s with one involving South African intermediaries, Bingham reported. Rhodesia's consumption of oil was nearly three million barrels a year when it broke from Britain in 1965, and in the past few years it had been nearly double that.

Executives of BP and Shell in London have claimed they could not get full details of their South African affiliates' operations because of South African legal requirements. But Bingham says certain officials clearly knew what was going on.

Imperial sun sinks on Brunei

LONDON, Sept. 19 (R) — Brunei and Britain are to initial a new treaty here on Sept. 28 under which the sultanate will assume its full responsibility as a sovereign independent state, British officials said Tuesday.

Agreement on the new treaty was reached here in June when it was decided that a battalion of Gurkhas would remain in Brunei until September 1983.

Russian at U.N. granted asylum in Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — A Soviet translator at the United Nations has been given permission to remain in the United States along with his wife and daughter, a U.S. State Department spokesman said Monday.

Spokesman Ken Brown identified the man as Imant Lesbinkis. Brown said he had no further details of the defection nor did he know where Lishinskis or his family were staying.

The "Washington Post" said he was born in Latvia, one of the Baltic states absorbed by the Soviet Union.

It said the man and his wife, Rasma, had worked at the United Nations in New York for about two years. When their daughter, Leva, visited them, the account said, the family drove to Washington earlier this month and turned themselves over to the State Department.

The "Post" said Latvian exile sources have alleged that the translator really is a major in the KGB.

Earlier this year, Arkady Shevchenko, the highest ranking Soviet citizen in the U.N. Secretariat, also was granted permission to stay in the United States after saying he did not want to go back to the Soviet Union.

Left nears 4th win in French vote

PARIS, Sept. 19 (UPI) — The Leftist opposition parties in France appear headed for their fourth straight by-election victory over rising inflation and unemployment.

In the first round of balloting Sunday, Socialist Yvon Tondou drew 37.48 percent of the ballots to 28.96 percent for Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber. The Socialist-Communist opposition has won all three by-elections held in France since it was defeated by the center-right majority in the March legislative elections.

JFK committee weighs report of Oswald's Cuba connection

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — House of Representatives Assassinations Committee is weighing the merits of a mysterious intelligence report suggesting that Lee Harvey Oswald hinted to Cuban officials he might kill President Kennedy, and that Fidel Castro knew this before hand.

Castro has denied the allegation. The suggestion that the Cuban leader had some inkling of Oswald's plan first emerged in 1967 in a "National Enquirer" article by Comer Clark, a British journalist who died in 1972.

In a written report, committee counsel Robert Blakey said: "Even though there may be doubts as to the fact of Clark's interview with President Castro, the committee has been informed that the substance of the Clark article is supported by highly confidential but reliable sources available to the United States government."

Foreign investment in U.S. up 65%

Foreign investment in U.S. up 65%

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP) — Direct investment in the U.S. has jumped more than 65 percent in the past year, a major New York Times survey has said.

K. defies EEC partners; rejects new monetary plan

BRUSSELS, Sept. 19 (R) — The EEC summit meeting in Bremen last July.

The ministers took no decisions Monday but the British sources said all agreed in principle that intervention in the new monetary system would be carried out in EEC currencies, although third country currencies such as the dollar could be used.

There was no specific discussion on the future role of the dollar in the system, but the ministers agreed that substantial short and medium term credit facilities of 25 billion European Units of Account ($32 billion) would be made available on top of existing EEC credits when the system starts early next year.

West German Finance Minister Hans Matthöfer told journalists the talks had taken another step forward and he was optimistic the system would begin on schedule despite British reservations.

Fluctuation margins to be allowed in the new system were not discussed Monday but none of the countries involved wanted margins wider than the 2.25 per cent either side of a central rate used in the existing European joint float of "snake," the British sources added.

at faster pace in recent years than U.S. direct investment in other countries.

A key reason for this trend, the bank said "is that, with the dollar's... depreciation against other major currencies, many European and Japanese firms that earlier had built substantial exports to the U.S. now find it more advantageous to serve the American market from within."

"For some companies, growing protectionist sentiment in the U.S. has been a further stimulus to setting up or acquiring operations in this country."

"With the U.S. Stock Market depressed in recent years, equity prices have been low relative to the value of underlying assets," encouraging foreign takeovers of American firms.

"Morgan Guaranty estimated that European nations accounted for two thirds of foreign direct investment in the U.S. at the end of 1977 and Canada for about 18 per cent—collectively representing 84 per cent of the total. The Netherlands held first place, with investments of $7.1 billion, closely followed by the United Kingdom and Canada, with holdings of $6.3 billion and $6.0 billion respectively."

German, Swiss, and French holdings ranged from $2.5 billion to $1.8 billion. Japanese investments amounted to 5 per cent of the total. OPEC countries—whose direct investments were mainly in real estate and finance—accounted for less than one per cent."

Morgan Guaranty commented that "Middle East oil countries have played a minuscule role in direct investment—contrary to concerns in some quarters a few years ago that billions of government-owned petrodollar surplus might come back in wide-scale takeovers of U.S. business and property."

Instead, OPEC nations have placed their funds mainly in U.S. treasury obligations, commercial bank deposits and portfolio investments involving less than 10 per cent ownership of U.S. firms.

"German investments have been rising faster than those of other major investors, and at the end of 1977 were more than 2 1/2 times the figure four years earlier. French investments also in a strong upward trend, more than doubled during the period."

Japan's investments increased more than ten fold during the 1973-74 period, to a total of $1.7 billion at the end of last year, the bank said.

Labor strife may halt two British newspapers

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP) — The respected "Times" and "Sunday Times" newspapers will cease publication Nov. 30 unless there is agreement with unions on a number of issues, management officials said Monday.

Months of unofficial strikes have disrupted production and resulted in the distribution of 9.6 million fewer copies of "Times" publications than expected this year.

Thomson Newspapers, owners of "The Times," "Sunday Times," and the Times Library, educational and higher education supplements, said the disputes have cost about $4 million since Jan. 1.

M.J. Hussey, managing director and chief executive of Times Newspapers, said he and his colleagues would continue to try for agreement with the newspapers' unions, which include about 10 different groups.

Management wants new agreement covering disputes procedure, wages, technology and staffing. It also wants a guarantee of continuous production.

Union restiveness springs largely from fear that new technology will displace scores of workers.

"The Times" of London did not miss an issue from 1785 until 1965, the year of the first strike, Editor William Rees-Mogg said last May. He said labor relations in Fleet Street, London's newspaper row, have become nearly impossible since for some newspapers.

De Venecia, president of the Philippine Petroleum Association and founder of two companies in the group exploring the Nido fields in the South China Sea, had said that initial production would need $42 million of equipment to be financed by a syndicate of international banks led by Citibank of New York.

Subsequent exploration in and near the Nido area could bring the Philippines to self-sufficiency in oil and possibly leave enough for export, he Venecia said.

De Venecia and officials of the energy ministry could not be immediately contacted for comment on the report.

The bulletin said its sources in the bureau agreed to release the information on condition that they were not identified.

The sources said that officials of the energy ministry had been debating for some time what the production rate of the two wells should be, with the group favoring a 20,000-barrel-per day rate.

The sources, according to the bulletin, said the figure of 70,000 was finally decided.

Philippines offshore well to run dry in five years

MANILA, Sept. 19 (AP) — The Philippines' offshore oil well will run dry after only five years of production at the announced rate of 40,000 barrels a day, the Manila bulletin reported Monday from unidentified sources in the Bureau of Energy Development.

Both the government and the companies that discovered oil in the two Nido wells off Palawan island in the central Philippines have announced that production would start during the first quarter of 1979, but the proven volume of the deposit has been kept a tight secret.

The bulletin said its sources in the bureau agreed to release the information on condition that they were not identified.

Iraq resumes pumping oil to Turkey

ANKARA, Sept. 19 (R) — Iraq has resumed pumping oil to Turkey through a jointly-operated pipeline after a break of eight months caused by Ankara's debts to Baghdad, oil industry sources said.

The two neighboring states reached agreement last month on the payment of a $300-million oil debt through Turkish commodity exports to Iraq. The sources said Iraq has also paid Turkey almost $1.5 million in overdue royalties for oil destined for third countries.

An Egyptian-Israeli treaty

(The following is the White House text of the "Framework for the Conclusion of a Peace Treaty between Egypt and Israel" signed by the Camp David summit participants.)

In order to achieve peace between them, Israel and Egypt agree to negotiate in good faith with a goal of concluding within three months of the signing of this framework a peace treaty between them.

It is agreed that:

The site of the negotiations will be under a United Nations flag at a location or locations to be mutually agreed.

All of the principles of U.N. Resolution 242 will apply in this resolution of the dispute between Israel and Egypt.

Unless otherwise mutually agreed, terms of the peace treaty will be implemented between two and three years after the peace treaty is signed.

The following matters are agreed between the parties:

(A) The full exercise of Egyptian sovereignty up to the internationally recognized border between Egypt and Mandatory Palestine;

(B) The withdrawal of Israeli armed forces from the Sinai; (C) The use of airfields left by the Israelis near El Arish, Rafah, Ras en Naqab, and Sharm el Sheikh for civilian purposes only, including possible commercial use by all nations;

(D) The right of free passage by ships of Israel through the Gulf of Suez and the Suez Canal on the basis of the Constantinople Convention of 1888 applying to all nations; The Strait of Tiran and the Gulf of Aqaba are international waterways to be open to all nations for unimpeded and non-suspendable freedom of navigation and overflight; (E) The construction of a highway between the Sinai and Jordan near Elat with guaranteed free and peaceful passage by Egypt and Jordan; and (F) The stationing of military forces listed below.

Stationing of Forces

A. No more than one division (mechanized or infantry) of Egyptian armed forces will be stationed within an area lying approximately 50 kilometers east of the Gulf of Suez and the Suez Canal.

B. Only United Nations forces and civil police equipped with light weapons to perform normal police functions will be stationed within an area lying west of the international border and the Gulf of Aqaba, varying in width from 20 kilometers to 40 kilometers.

C. In the area within 3 kilometers east of the international border there will be Israeli limited military forces not to exceed four infantry battalions and United Nations observers. D. Border patrol units, not to exceed three battalions, will supplement the civil police in maintaining order in the area not included above.

The exact demarcation of the above areas will be as decided during the peace negotiations.

Early warning stations may exist to insure compliance with the terms of the agreement.

United Nations forces will be stationed: (A) In part of the area in the Sinai lying within about 20 kilometers of the Mediterranean Sea and adjacent to the international border, and (B) In the Sharm el Sheikh area to ensure freedom of passage through the Strait of Tiran; and these forces will not be removed unless such removal is approved by the Security Council of the United Nations with a unanimous vote of the five permanent members.

After a peace treaty is signed, and after the interim withdrawal is complete, normal relations will be established between Egypt and Israel, including: full recognition, including diplomatic, economic and cultural relations; termination of economic boycotts and barriers to the free movement of goods and people; and mutual protection of citizens by the due process of law.

Interim withdrawal

Between three months and nine months after the signing of the peace treaty, all Israeli forces will withdraw east of a line extending from a point east of El Arish to Ras Muhammad, the exact location of this line to be determined by mutual agreement. (Agencies)

An overall peace accord

(The following is a partial text of "The Framework for Peace in the Middle East," signed by the Camp David summit participants, as released by the White House.)

WASHINGTON —
Preamble:

The search for peace in the Middle East must be guided by the following:

The agreed basis for a peaceful settlement of the conflict between Israel and its neighbors is U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 in all its parts.

After four wars during 30 years, despite intensive humane efforts, the Middle East, which is the cradle of civilization and the birthplace of three great religions, does not yet enjoy the blessings of peace. The people of the Middle East yearn for peace, so that the vast human and natural resources of the region can be turned to the pursuits of peace and so that this area can become a model for coexistence and cooperation among nations.

The historic initiative by President Sadat in visiting Jerusalem and the reception accorded to him by the parliament, government and people of Israel, and the reciprocal visit of Prime Minister Begin to Israel, the peace proposals made by both leaders, as well as the warm reception of these missions by the peoples of both countries, have created an unprecedented opportunity for peace which must not be lost if this generation and future generations are to be spared the tragedies of war.

The provisions of the Charter of the United Nations and the other accepted norms of international law and diplomacy now provide accepted standards for the conduct of relations between all states.

To achieve a relationship of peace, in the spirit of Article 2 of the U.N. Charter, future negotiations between Israel and any neighbor prepared to negotiate peace and security with it, are necessary for the purpose of carrying out all the provisions and principles of Resolutions 242 and 332.

Peace requires respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of every state in the area and their right to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force.

Framework

Taking these factors into account, the parties are determined to reach a just, comprehensive, and durable settlement of the Middle East conflict through the conclusion of peace treaties based on Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338 in all their parts. Their purpose is to achieve peace and good neighborly relations. They recognize that, for peace to emerge, it must involve all those who have been most deeply affected by the conflict. They therefore agree that this framework as appropriate is intended by them to constitute a basis for peace not only between Egypt and Israel, but also between Israel and each of its other neighbors which is prepared to negotiate peace with Israel on this basis with this objective in mind, they have agreed to proceed as follows:

A. West Bank and Gaza:

1. Egypt, Israel, Jordan and the representatives of the Palestinian people should participate in negotiations on the resolution of the Palestinian problem in all its aspects. To achieve that objective, negotiations relating to the West Bank and Gaza should proceed in three stages.

(A) Egypt and Israel agree that, in order to ensure a peaceful and orderly transfer of authority, and taking into account the security concerns of all the parties, there should be transitional arrangements for the West Bank and Gaza for a period not exceeding five years.

In order to provide full autonomy to the inhabitants, the Israeli military government and its civilian administration will be withdrawn as soon as a self-governing authority has been freely elected by the inhabitants of these areas to replace the existing military government.

To negotiate the details of a transitional arrangement, the government of Jordan will be invited to join the negotiations on the basis of this framework.

These new arrangements should give due consideration to both the principle of self-government by the inhabitants of these territories and to the legitimate security concerns of the parties involved.

(B) Egypt, Israel and Jordan will agree on the modalities for establishing the elected self-governing authority in the West Bank and Gaza. The delegations of Egypt and Jordan may include Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza or other Palestinians as mutually agreed.

The parties will negotiate an agreement which will define the powers and responsibilities of the self-governing authority to be exercised in the West Bank and Gaza.

A withdrawal of Israeli armed forces will take place and there will be a redeployment of the remaining Israeli forces into specified security locations.

The agreement will also include arrangements for assuring internal and external security and public order. A strong local police force will be established, which may be made up of Jordanian citizens. In addition, Israeli and Jordanian forces will participate in joint patrols and in the manning of control posts to assure the security of the borders.

(C) When the self-governing authority (administrative council) in the West Bank and Gaza is established and inaugurated, the transitional period of five years will begin. As soon as possible, but not later than the third year after the beginning of the transitional period, negotiations will take place to determine the final status of the West Bank and Gaza and its relationship with its neighbors, and to conclude a peace treaty between Israel and Jordan by the end of the transitional period. These negotiations will be conducted among Egypt, Israel, Jordan, and the elected representatives of the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza. Two separate but related committees will be convened: one committee, consisting of representatives of the four parties which will negotiate and agree on the final status of the West Bank and Gaza, and its relationship with its neighbors; and the second committee, consisting of representatives of Israel and representatives of Jordan to be joined by the elected representatives of the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza, to negotiate the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan, taking into account the agreement reached on the final status of the West Bank and Gaza.

The negotiations shall be conducted on all the provisions and principles of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

Palestinian rights

The negotiations will resolve, among other matters, the location of the boundaries and the nature of the security arrangements. The solution from the negotiations must also recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and their just requirements, in this way, the Palestinians will participate in the determination of their own future through:

—1. The negotiations among Egypt, Israel, Jordan and the representatives of the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza to agree on the final status of the West Bank and Gaza and other outstanding issues by the end of the transitional period.

—2. Submitting their agreement to a vote by the elected representatives of the inhabitants of the West Bank Gaza.

—3. Providing for the elected representatives of the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza to decide how it shall govern themselves consistent with the provisions of their agreement.

—4. Participating as above in the work of committee negotiating the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan.

Security

2. All necessary measures be taken and provisions made to assure the security of Israel and its neighbors during transitional period and beyond.

To assist in providing security, a strong local police force will be constituted by self-governing authority. It will be composed of inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza. Police will maintain continuous liaison on internal security with the designated Israeli Jordanian and Egyptian forces.

Displaced persons

3. During the transitional period, the representatives of Egypt, Israel, Jordan and self-governing authority constitute a continuing committee to decide by agreement on the modalities of admission of persons displaced from West Bank and Gaza in order to prevent disruption of the social and economic life. Other matters common concern may also be dealt with by this committee.

4. Egypt and Israel work with each other and other interested parties to establish agreed procedures for a prompt, just and permanent implementation of the resolution of the refugee problem.

B. Egypt-Israel

1. Egypt and Israel undertake not to resort to the threat of the use of force to settle disputes. Any disputes shall be settled by peaceful means in accordance with the provisions of Article 33 of the Charter of the United Nations.

2. In order to achieve peace between them, the parties agree to negotiate in good faith with a goal of concluding within three months from the signing of the framework a peace treaty between them while inviting other parties to the conflict proceed simultaneously to negotiate and conduct similar peace treaties with a view to achieving a comprehensive peace in the area. The framework for conclusion of a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel governs the peace negotiations between them. The parties agree on the modalities and timetable for the implementation of their obligations under the treaty.

Associated principles

1. Egypt and Israel state that the principles and provisions described below should apply to peace treaties between Israel and each of its neighbors: Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon.

2. Signatories shall establish among themselves relations normal to states at peace with each other. To this end, it should undertake to abide all the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations. Steps to be taken in this respect include:

(A) Full recognition.

(B) Abolishing economic boycotts.

(C) Guaranteeing that neither their jurisdiction the citizens of other parties shall enjoy the protection of the due process of law.

3. Signatories should explore possibilities for economic development in the context of final peace treaties, with the objective of contributing to the atmosphere of peace, cooperation, and friendship which their common goal.

4. Claims commissions may be established for the mutual settlement of all financial claims.

5. The United States shall be invited to participate in the talks in matters related to the modalities of the implementation of the agreements on working out the timetable for the carrying out of the obligations of the parties.

6. The United Nations Security Council shall be requested to endorse the peace treaties and ensure that their provisions shall not be violated.

CAMP DAVID MAGIC

The announcement in Washington that Secretary Vance will visit Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia to "promote" the Camp David settlement has underlined the pivotal role that these countries will play in the success or failure of the American-sponsored settlement. Jordan and Syria have a direct interest while Saudi Arabia is indirectly involved, but the ultimate result of the summit conference in the woods of Maryland will rest with them as much as with Egypt and Israel.

The Camp David documents envisage a role for Jordan during the transitional period of five years when the Israeli military government will give way for a self-governing authority. King Hussein will come under tremendous pressure from the Americans to play ball. He will also come under equal Arab pressure to stay out. Assuming that the opposing pressures eliminate each other, Jordan could then treat the agreements in the light of its own national interests. In this case it is given a choice between the poor and the unacceptable. If the agreements do lead to a peaceful settlement, the West Bank will have been lost to the Amman government. If, on the other hand, so-called development and Israel refuses to withdraw from the West Bank, Jordan will have been made party to the legalization of the occupation. On top of this, the Camp David proposals leave a big question mark hanging over the future of Arab Jerusalem. King Hussein will not easily abandon his country's claim to the holy city no matter what he is promised in return.

Jerusalem figures even higher in the official Saudi thinking. As custodians of the Muslim holy places, the Saudis shoulder a religious, national and emotional commitment toward the holy city whose liberation was the life ambition of the late King Faisal. But even before getting to this hardest of all nuts, the Camp David documents leave much to be desired as far as the Saudi position goes. It must be recalled that before President Sadat left for Camp David, an official Saudi announcement was issued to support his quest for a just and lasting peace in the Middle East. In the broadest possible terms, this peace can only rest on the withdrawal of the Israeli forces from the occupied territories and the restoration of legitimate Palestinian rights. Secretary Vance will do his best to assuage Saudi misgivings about the deal made at Camp David. The Saudis will be much harder to convince than President Sadat because they do not suffer from the same limitations. They are at one time ready to do everything for peace but determined that Arab rights are not lost in achieving it.

If Jordan and Saudi Arabia opt to stay out, the settlement will degenerate into a unilateral peace between Israel and Egypt. President Sadat has said that he will not hold a separate peace and, on the face of it, he has not. But the non-Egyptian part of the deal is questionable. Once it is formally turned down the only thing left will be a separate peace agreement. The Washington administration will be desperately trying to avoid such an ending. But it has probably used up all its magic at Camp David. Its magic, at any rate, does not work equally with everyone.

Carter's speech to Congress

WASHINGTON—The United States has had no choice but to be concerned about the Middle East, and to use our influence and efforts to advance the cause of peace. For the last 30 years, through four wars, the people of this troubled region have paid a terrible price in suffering, division, hatred and bloodshed. No two nations have suffered more than Israel and Egypt. But the dangers and the costs of conflict in this region for our nation have been great as well. We have long-standing friendships with the nations and peoples of the region, and profound moral commitments which are deeply rooted in our values as a people.

"The strategic location of these countries and the resources they possess mean that events in the Middle East directly affect people everywhere. We and our friends could not be indifferent if a hostile power were to establish domination there."

"In few areas of the world is there a greater risk that a local conflict could spread among other nations and then erupt into confrontation between the superpowers. Our people have come to understand that unfamiliar names—Sinai, Aqaba, Sharm el Sheikh, Ras en Naqab, Gaza, the West Bank of the Jordan—can have a direct and immediate bearing on our well-being as a nation and our hope for a peaceful world."

"That is why we cannot be idle bystanders, why we have been full partners in the search for peace, and why it is so vital to our nation that these meetings have been a success." — (AP)

Loose ends and hurdles

By Robert B. Cutler
WASHINGTON—The Camp David summit apparently has put Israel and Egypt on the road toward peace, but the way is still strewn with problems that have defied resolution for more than 30 years.

The text of the agreements reached at the Mideast summit, which ended Sunday, shows that on the most difficult issues, the parties were forced to postpone a final reckoning in the hopes that a period of peaceful negotiations might show the way to a settlement.

The problems are most acute in the disputed West Bank and Gaza area that Israel captured in the 1967 War.

The Camp David agreement leaves dozens of loose ends, it hinges heavily on the willingness of Jordan to join the talks, as Jordan is expected to help police the area and might eventually attain limited sovereignty over it. King Hussein has not yet agreed even to enter the talks, although American officials say they expect that he will.

But bringing Hussein into the talks may be easy compared to the problem of Palestinian representation. The Palestine Liberation Organization has denounced the agreement, which does not obligate Israel to completely withdraw its forces, even at the end of the contemplated five-year transition.

The PLO is likely to call for a boycott of the entire process, and most Arab governments recognize the organization as the sole representative of the Palestinians.

American officials said the agreement allows any West Bank or Gaza resident to participate in the political process, including members of the PLO. But most PLO members and leaders live outside the two disputed areas, many of them in refugee camps and commando bases in Lebanon.

Israel, according to the agreement, will have to consent to whatever arrangement is made for the repatriation of West Bank and Gaza Palestinians, making it unlikely that PLO members would be able to return, even if they wanted to participate.

What will happen to the hundreds of thousands of Palestinians living in refugee camps? What will happen to the Israeli settlements in the occupied territories? Will there be more Israeli settlements? The Camp David agreement does not say.

The negotiators, once they get started, will have five years to deal with the array of questions that had to be left unresolved in an agreement that both Begin and Sadat could sign.

They include the final boundaries of Israel, and whether Israel will retain a troop presence in the West Bank and Gaza areas. American officials say they think Israel has embarked on a process leading to complete troop withdrawal. But Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Monday that Israel has made no commitment to withdraw its troops completely, even after the five-year period.

The summit made no progress on the emotional question of Jerusalem, a holy city for Jews, Muslims and Christians. President Carter finally decided to accept letters from both Sadat and Begin, which basically restated their positions.

The easier of the two agreements was the one concluding peace between Egypt and Israel, and restoring the Sinai to Egypt. This agreement left only one unresolved problem, the fate of the Israeli settlements in the Sinai.

Sadat wants Israel to agree to remove them as a prerequisite for the peace treaty. Begin would not agree, deferring the issue to the Israeli Knesset or parliament, which is supposed to vote on it within two weeks.

Israeli officials, speaking privately, said there will be a close and emotional vote on the question. Begin says he will leave it up to Knesset members to vote their consciences.

The Knesset vote will be the first major hurdle. If it is not cleared, the Camp David framework might well come tumbling down like a house of cards. And the Knesset is considered one of the easiest hurdles on the road to peace.

ment, and damaging the reputation of a people or a country is a major crime that deserves punishment.

"There are not many who indulge in disgraceful activities out of sheer ignorance, but it does not mean that we should be indifferent to them."

"It should be our prime duty to find effective solutions and deterrent measures."

saudi press review

"Al-Medina" said that, despite the agreement at Camp David, there was no less need for Arab solidarity. Dialogue and consultation were always much better than rifts and differences.

The Arabs must work with great understanding and restraint to avoid any widening of their differences that would only benefit the enemy.

There had never been any dearth of resolutions in the past. The United Nations had adopted several, but Israel had always sunk them. There were many agreements Israel signed and revoked.

No sooner had the conference ended than Premier Begin started giving his interpretation utterly at variance with the neutral U.S. interpretation of the line on Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories.

The Americans would be shocked one day to find that their understanding of the accord is quite different from Begin's.

As for the Arabs, they had been used to the Jewish nature since the partition of Palestine.

An "Al-Riyadh" columnist was annoyed by the "misconduct" of some Saudis in foreign countries. It was quite shameful and it tarnished the Kingdom's reputation.

A Saudi "who laid his money at the feet of a dancing girl or twisted his waist in a cabaret among people of different nationalities or offered gifts to a courtesan, only wanted to deprive himself of the virtues of sublime morals and principles and preferred a debased society to a graceful life."

This type perhaps lacked a sense of national responsibility and allowed himself to remain ignorant of the meaning of self-respect or regard for his country.

"Our values and reputation as a Saudi society must be far above immoral behavior. No one can deny that we live in a country blessed with freedom, justice and equality, but when the freedom of some weak-spirited people threatens the reputation of everyone it must be bridled."

"It is a universal rule that every crime is liable to punish-

Shangri-La, at a new Jeddah location, gets high dining marks

By Box Wallah

JEDDAH—The Shangri-La Restaurant has been well advertised since its move from Palestine Square and we were looking forward to a visit. The new premises, near the Saudi-Chinese Commercial Center, are on an unmade road off the Macarona Road. The approach is dusty, but not impassable and there is ample room for parking.

The vestibule of the Shangri-La is decorated with such eclecticism that one wonders how the Chinese ever acquired their reputation for inscrutability. The overall effect is of scarlet and orange. There are rich, gilded carvings and heavy, Mandarin chairs. One almost expects the characters of some Peking opera to suddenly appear leaping and brandishing swords to the accompaniment of clashing cymbals in the presence of the Lion General.

Inside, there are two dining rooms furnished and decorated in the same genre. The ceilings are of an intricately carved and figured dark wood and there are many engaging pictures on the walls, such as flowers on gold in rose-wood frames—and hanging bronzes lamps.

The waiters, twelve smartly dressed and welcoming, young men, are all from Indonesia. The tables have white and orange linen and the food is served on attractive, dignified, blue and white porcelain. Chopsticks are optional.

The extensive menu is entirely Chinese and one is asked to order by number. There are simple descriptions of each dish in English. All the usual soft drinks are available at average prices.

We started with shrimp balls and spring rolls. Shrimp balls are made of minced seasoned shrimp, fried in crisp batter, and served with a sweet sauce. Spring rolls are crispy Pan-cakes folded to contain a tasty stuffing of meat and vegetables with bean shoots.

There is chili sauce and soy sauce to add to the interest.

We also had chicken and corn soup, a smooth textured puree, and wonton soup, which is a clear consommé, containing small, stuffed dumplings and cabbage leaf.

The soups were delicately flavored and pleasant to the taste. Like everything else, they were served hot and fresh from the cooking pot.

The excellent character of the Chinese cuisine is in the variety of colors, flavors and textures, the extraordinary sophistication of the dishes and the use of a great number of ingredients. It clearly reflects both the traditions of an ancient culture and the economy of a largely rural society, so that rich things and simple things, as they are available, can be used equally well.

We were advised to order all our choices at once because most of the dishes are specially prepared for each customer. While you are lingering over your spring rolls and soup, the six cooks (all from Taiwan) will be rushing about in the kitchen getting further delights ready. Slight delays in serving may occur, especially if the house is busy, but the splendid offerings coming fresh and piping hot to your table will be worth the waiting for.

We ordered four items, intending to share each and to order others later if we had any spare space. As it turned out, the helpings were generous and although we had purposely avoided lunch, we were reluctantly not able to finish every last morsel.

Sweet-and-sour fish, chicken with bamboo shoots and mushrooms, beef szechuan and fried rice with chicken appeared together with howls of plain rice.

Sweet-and-sour fish is chunky pieces of white fish fried in batter and served in a hand sauce with carrots, peas and pineapple. The chicken dish was made up of small pieces of the breast with chunks of crisp bamboo shoot and white mushrooms, a few pieces of carrot and peas for color, served in a brown, meaty sauce. Beef Szechuan (the Northwestern province of China, near Tibet) was characteristically hot and spicy, composed of strips of fried beef, flavored liberally with chili and served in a piquant sauce with bean shoots and onion. Those who find curry dishes too hot should, perhaps, avoid it. Devotees of the little green dragon, however, will relish it.

The fried rice was very much like a pulao with pieces of chicken, fried egg and peas. The rice was fine-grained of excellent quality and it made a very good base for the other dishes.

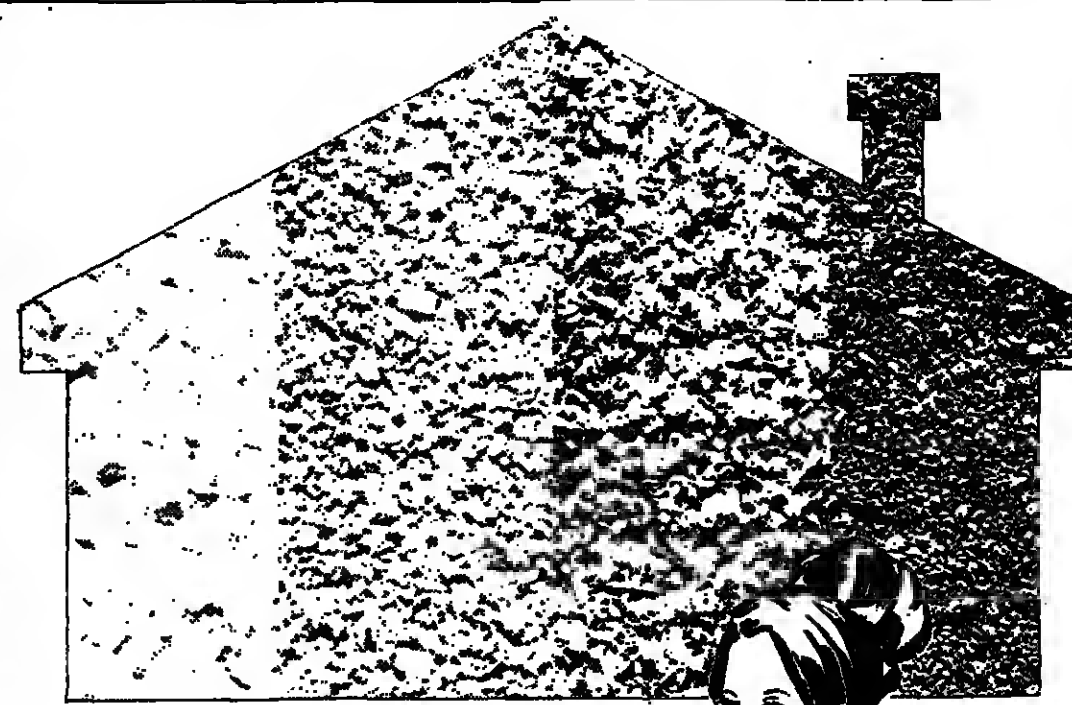

After a suitable pause, we ordered lychees to finish our meal and green tea to freshen our palates. Lychees, if you have never had them, are a rose-flavored, white-fleshed fruit found all over China and Southeast Asia. They are delicious fresh from their scarlet, spikey skins. Of course, these were tinned, but nice enough in their scented syrup to be a finale to an excellent meal. Having enjoyed a great number of Chinese meals in Hong Kong, Macau, Singapore and Penang, during the "incredible hardships" of living and working in those far-away places, Box Wallah can highly recommend the food in Shangri-La.

The manager, Andrew Chan, comes from Hong Kong. He told us that Shangri-La is already established in Riyadh and Al-Khobar and proposes to open a house shortly in Jubail. Here in Jeddah, they have two dining rooms, each with 31 tables, and three private rooms (for parties of up to 15 persons) in all. Andrew imports most of his special ingredients from Taiwan and Singapore. Chinese cuisine, he was saying, falls into three or four main categories. Peking tends to be oily, Shanghai salty, Canton sweet and Szechuan hot. Shangri-La tries to represent all these tendencies in the large number of dishes and specialties available.

The bill for two, including drinks and service, was 117 Riyals, which was very fair for the variety of dishes we enjoyed. The restaurant is open for lunch from 1 to 3 p.m. (except Fridays) and daily from 7 to 12 p.m. for dinner. Booking is advisable if you want to eat at a special time, but it would be most unlikely that you would ever be turned away. A telephone is shortly to be installed.

The bidding:
East 3♣ South 3♥ West 3♦ North 3♠
Pass 5♥ Pass 6♥ Pass 6♥

Opening lead - four of spades.

You may not agree with the bidding but it's hard to quarrel with the result. South got to six hearts and made it even though he had three losers, so how can anyone seriously criticize the contract?

It's hard to blame South for bidding five hearts in the sequence shown. He had to identify his slam potential - after all, he had a solid 14 points instead of only the 4 points or so he might have had - and a response of only four hearts would not have represented his values adequately. Why North raised five hearts to six, instead of passing, is difficult to explain. Sheer momentum, perhaps. Declarer took the spade lead with the ace, drew trumps, cashed the king of clubs and A-K of diamonds, and then ended with the ten of spades. East won with the jack and found himself on lead in this position:

North ♠ 7 7 ♥ 9 4 ♦ A 9 ♣ A 9
West ♠ Q 10 7 ♥ J 10 7 ♦ J 10 7 ♣ J 10 7
East ♠ K Q 8 8 6 ♥ J 10 7 ♦ J 10 7 ♣ J 10 7
South ♠ A 7 ♥ Q J 8 8 5 ♦ A 6 5 ♣ K 4

East had to return a spade, thus allowing declarer to discard a diamond as he ruffed the return in dummy. South then trumped the four of diamonds with the nine of hearts, led the jack of hearts, and West found himself squeezed. Whatever he discarded, declarer would make the last three tricks. Oddly enough, East might have stopped the slam by ducking the ten of spades! However, South could counter this move by playing two rounds of clubs, thus squeezing West, but this merely goes to show that North had bid his hand correctly.

Red Sox outlast Tigers, 5-4

Yanks bottle Brewers, stay 2 1/2 ahead

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP) — The sizzling New York Yankees, behind one of their red-hot pitchers, Ed Figueroa, continued their drive toward the American League East championship, edging the Milwaukee Brewers, 4-3, Monday night.

The victory kept the Yankees 2 1/2 games ahead of the Boston Red Sox, who kept pace by outlasting the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, in 11 innings.

Figueroa, winning for the 11th time in his last 13 decisions and raising his season's record to 18-9 scattered seven hits, including two homers by Cecil Cooper and a solo shot by Sixto Lezcano.

But the Yankees overcame those blows on consecutive homers by Reggie Jackson and Lou Piniella. Roy White's sacrifice fly and Mickey Rivers' run-scoring infield single in the eighth inning that broke a 3-3 tie.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4
Boston and Detroit also engaged in a long-ball hitting game, but the Red Sox won it on Jerry Remy's RBI single in the 11th. Earlier, Dwight Evans and Fred Lynn homered for Boston and Steve Kemp, Rusty Staub and John Wockenfuss connected for Detroit.

Orioles 10, Indians 3
Meanwhile, Baltimore moved into third place in the AL East, 6 1/2 games behind New York and one half-game in front of

Korchnoi's slight edge may not prevent draw

BAGUIO, Philippines, Sept. 19 (R) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi appeared slightly ahead when champion Anatoly Karpov sealed his 42nd move in the World Chess Championship Tuesday night. Korchnoi, playing black, seized the initiative late in the game and seemed to be trying for a win. But most experts thought a draw was likely when they resume the adjourned 24th game Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Baltimore moved into third place in the AL East, 6 1/2 games behind New York and one half-game in front of the 10-week match. Before starting play, Korchnoi had publicly announced his decision to drop two controversial yodis from his delegation.

Match officials who threatened to recess the championship unless Korchnoi dropped the two American yoga experts. They are prominent members of the Indian Ananda Marg sect, and are on bail while appealing against conviction on charges of stabbing an Indian diplomat in the Philippines early this year.

ton's homer was his 31st, the most by a Cleveland player since 1964.

Twins 10, Angels 4
The Minnesota Twins broke loose for seven runs in the fourth inning and trounced the California Angels, 10-4. Hosken Powell had a pair of run-scoring singles in the big inning and Jose Morales contributed a two-run triple.

Royals 7, Mariners 6
California's loss dropped them 5 1/2 games behind first-place Kansas City in the AL West. The Royals beat the Seattle Mariners, 7-6, in 11 innings, scoring the winning run when John Wathan was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

A's 6, White Sox 3
In the other AL game, rookie John Johnson scattered nine hits and Dave Reverting smacked his 15th homer, leading the Oakland A's to a 6-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3
In the only National League game, the Cincinnati Reds moved within 7 1/2 games of first-place Los Angeles in the West division, blanking the Dodgers, 4-0, behind the seventh-inning pitching of rookie Mike Laccoss. Ken Griffey and Johnny Bench led Cincinnati's nine-hit attack with three singles apiece.

FIGHTS AGAIN: Champion Muhammad Ali, deluged with offers from promoters, will defend his crown. But he will make no decision for eight months.

Ali will fight again after 8 months' rest

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (AP) — Muhammad Ali has no intention at this time of retiring without another defense of his heavyweight boxing crown, spokesmen for the champion said Monday.

But no decision on whom to fight, when and where will be made for at least eight months, Herbert Muhammad Ali's manager, said.

In a statement, released in Chicago by Charles Lomax, Ali's attorney, Muhammad said that after eight months, "Mr. Ali will make the determination as to the date of the defense of his title and the name of the opponent."

Lomax said the statement was released after a deluge of offers from promoters followed Ali's recapture of the World Boxing Association title Friday by beating Leon Spinks.

Among the proposals was an offer to Ali at $8 million to fight an opponent of his choice in Iran, and another of $6 to $8 million to fight Gerrie Coetzee in South Africa.

Promoters' suit was racist, champ says

NEW ORLEANS, Louisiana, Sept. 19 (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali said Monday that the $1 million suit filed against two black promoters of his fight last Friday was a racist effort to stifle black enterprise.

The suit which alleged a plot by promoters Sherman Copelin and Don Hubbard in collusion with Butch Lewis of Top Rank Inc., has been dropped.

speech Ali told reporters Monday that Copelin and Hubbard were innocent victims of a bigotry inspired by the success of the promotion.

The fight, in which Ali outpointed Leon Spinks, drew a crowd of 70,000 and a gate estimated at $6 million.

Businessman Jake Dimaggio, and Councilman Philip Ciccio, who filed the suit Saturday, said Monday that their suit was the result of a misunderstanding and everything had been straightened out, they said in a written statement.

The two white businessmen accused Copelin, Hubbard and Lewis, all blacks, of conspiring to give money and contracts away from Louisiana Sports Inc., the group which put up $3.5 million to buy rights to the live gate for the fight.

"I expected this when I saw that jampacked house," Ali said. "I said to myself, 'Oh, oh, this is too successful for the night to go smooth.'

"Many sources were upset because they lost money betting against me. I'm a Muslim, and I'm black and I'm cocky, and that hurt so many bigots."

"For this nigger to get out on top must have hurt people. But not only that, niggers promoted the fight."

"Would you believe no blonde hair and no blue eyes involved? Would you believe no white man involved in the brain work?"

Racism
It was an atmosphere of racism which bred the suit, he said.

Dimaggio and Ciccio had complained of a $200,000 under-the-table fee that Hubbard and Copelin were to receive from Top Rank, which held the rights to the fight. The fee was to have been paid to Corporate Management Inc., which the two own.

Hubbard and Lewis said the fee was a legitimate business deal completed months before the formation of Louisiana Sports Inc., and before Copelin and Hubbard were made LSI's principal officers.

The suit also said that Copelin and Hubbard had agreed to pay Lewis personally $200,000, although he was employed as a vice president of Top Rank, from whom LSI bought rights to the live gate.

Lewis said he never got the money and hadn't expected it, although Hubbard said Lewis had performed numerous personal services for the promotion and was entitled to be paid.

Wehda upsets scrappy Ahli, 3-1

By a Staff Reporter
JEDDAH — Sept. 19 — Al-Wehda of Mecca pulled the upset of the young Saudi soccer season Monday night by trouncing Al-Ahli, the reigning King's Cup champion, 3-1.

The Mecca team showed excellent speed throughout. But the game remained close until 15 minutes into the second half, when Wehda scored two quick goals and then held off the Jeddah champion, with good defensive play.

Though strongly favored, Ahli entered the contest without two of its star forwards, Amin Dabbu, who was sick, and Imad Khoulali, who was suspended for rough play in Friday's game against Al-Riyadh.

Ahli lost another player in the second half when Wahid Johar, was suspended for arguing with a referee's decision. Johar is considered one of Ahli's best defensive players, but, with the score 3-1, the damage was already done when he got the red card.

The star of the game was Wehda's Shagrun, who scored the winning and follow-up goals in the second half with brilliant individual play. His second goal showed how badly the Jeddah champions had come apart. Shagrun intercepted an Ahli pass back to the goalkeeper, and with a flawless header and his own momentum, took the ball into the net. Shagrun, from Tunisia, joined the Wehda club this year.

The champions showed the poise that took them to the King's Cup in only a few minutes of the match.

looking flat-footed. Saud Hariri got the goal.

Ahli came back with teamwork for a methodical goal moments later led by Saud Samman. The Ahli players came out for the second half showing the same form, but were quickly unravelled by Wehda's speed.

The game was marked by several instances of rough play and was repeatedly interrupted by injuries to both sides.

The win moved Wehda's season record to two wins against one loss. It was Ahli's first loss of the season against two victories.

In other games Monday, Itifaq beat Riyadh, 3-2, and Kadasia defeated Itihad, 2-1 (Kadasia: Saud Jasim (17), Farid Maedi (38), Itihad: Abu Samra (42).

Alunni denounces court

Italy postpones Brigades trial

MILAN, Sept. 19 (Agencies) — Captured Red Brigades member Corrado Alunni angrily told a heavily-guarded court here Tuesday that his trial had become an execution. The court postponed the hearing until Wednesday.

The 30-year-old urban guerrilla, arrested last Wednesday in an apartment full of weapons including a machine gun, was facing a charge of illegal possession of firearms.

But an arrest warrant has also been issued for Alunni accusing him of taking part in the kidnap of former Premier Aldo Moro on March 16. No information has been released about any trial on this charge. "After so many defeats which the workers' vanguard have inflicted on the bosses," Alunni told the court, "now, after so much publicity, this trial is becoming a symbol of an execution, a decapitation."

After rejecting defense lawyers, Alunni was given a court-appointed defense counsel.

Alunni was arrested after police watched his Milan apartment secretly for two weeks and took hundreds of photographs of terrorist suspects who visited him.

Confiscated in the apartment raid were 14 pistols, 2 sub-machine guns, 7 rifles, thousands of rounds of ammunition, explosives and what police described as a "treasure trove" of documentary evidence about the urban guerrillas gang that has terrorized Italy for nine years.

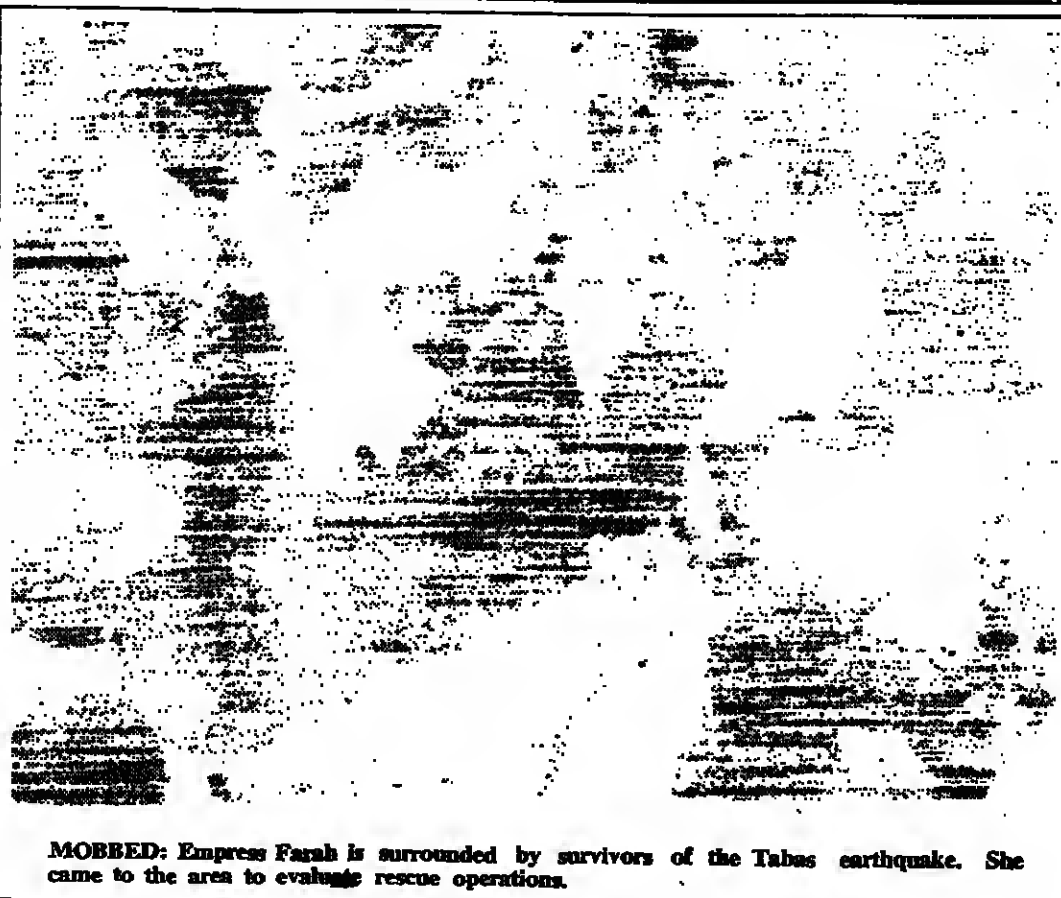

Milan judiciary officials had at first set Alunni's trial on the weapons possession and subversive activities charges for Oct. 12, but decided Monday to begin it as soon as possible.

"We decided on a speedy hearing for Alunni because the law provides for such when there is no need for a special investigation," said Chief Prosecutor Mauro Gresti.

Police believe Alunni took over leadership of the Red Brigades following the arrest of the gang's founder, Renato Curcio.

Investigating officers have said they believe the Red Brigades turned to increasingly violent attacks during recent years because of policy changes initiated by Alunni.

In addition to Moro's killing, Alunni has been formally charged with the assassination of Turin Lawyer's Association President Pulvio Croce in 1976. He is believed by police to have been responsible for other Red Brigades killings as well, including the shooting death last year of "La Stampa" newspaper editor Carlo Casalegno.

Morocco summit seeks panel on West Sahara

RABAT, Sept. 19 (R) — Morocco and Mauritania want an African "committee of wise men" to examine the Western Sahara, a joint communique said after an eight-hour visit to Morocco Monday by Mauritanian President Mustapha Ould Salek.

He had two meetings with King Hassan II. Government and military leaders from both countries attended a conference which was described as a fraternal working session.

The committee was first proposed early this year by the Organization of African Unity to solve the dispute, which flared nearly three years ago after Spain ceded the territory to Morocco and Mauritania. Polisario is fighting for its independence.

The conflict is said to have reached a critical stage since the Algerian-backed movement declared a unilateral ceasefire on Mauritania territory shortly after the July 10 coup, in which Lieut.-Gen. Salek overthrew President Moktar Ould Daddah.

The front continues to report military operations against Moroccan forces.

Polisario will hold its fourth congress on Sept. 25 in "liberated territories" to decide whether to continue its ceasefire in Mauritania.

Dollar totters in Tokyo trade

TOKYO, Sept. 19 (AP) — The U.S. dollar followed trends on U.S. and European markets and closed lower Tuesday in the wake of doubts about the viability of the Camp David agreement.

The American currency ended trading at 190.875 yen, lower than Monday's 192.35 end-of-day figure but higher than New York's last rate.

Poison cloud kills two in Genoa blast

GENOA, Sept. 19 (R) — At least two persons were killed by a cloud of poisonous fumes in a Genoa tannery Tuesday.

About 40 people were taken to hospital, several in serious condition, after the accident. Police said it happened when chrome sulphate was erroneously unloaded into a container filled with sulphidite sodium.

This caused a chemical chain reaction and sent a huge cloud of poison into the air.

Two victims were workers who had been standing by the van from which the chemicals were unloaded.

The accident was the third caused by chemicals in Italian factories in the past two years.

In Seveso, north Italy, highly toxic dioxin escaped from a chemical factory in July 1976, killing thousands of animals and forcing the evacuation of almost 800 people from the area for over a year.

rators and German forces during World War II, and said: "Just as the Free French people emerged victorious, so shall we."

Arafat's hard-line speech was echoed in the state-controlled Syrian press Tuesday, which called for immediate Arab action to wreck the Camp David agreements. "Al-Baath" organ of the ruling Baath Party, said in a leading article that a United Arab stand was needed to "foil the capitulation deal which Sadat has signed."

Syria and PLO form the nucleus of a five-member Arab alliance opposed to the Egyptian-Israeli peace moves which is due to open summit talks in Damascus Wednesday.

Condemnation of Camp David was also voiced in the Gulf, where a usually moderate Kuwaiti newspaper described the meeting as a surgical operation which had cut off Egypt from the rest of the Arab world.

In Abu Dhabi, the semi-official newspaper "Al-Itihad" called for an emergency Arab summit to dissuade Egypt from implementing the proposed peace treaty.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Fuad Boutros said in a statement that the accords raised question marks as much as they dealt with solutions, and he expressed fear that this would affect Lebanon more than any other country.

In Algeria, another member of the Arab alliance against separate peace moves, the government daily "El Moudjahid" said the summit had seen the total surrender of President Sadat.

The Iraq News Agency quoted the spokesman as saying the results of the conference revealed an important part of the anti-Arab conspiracy.

The spokesman said there were other parties besides Sadat involved in the U.S.-led plot.

At the U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Tuesday the agreements reached at Camp David are a "dramatic development that will have far-reaching consequences." But he warned that any judgement must await the re-creation of other parties in the area.

At a news conference before the start of the 1978 fall session of the General Assembly, Waldheim stressed the key role of the U.N. Security Council in the eventual carrying out of the agreements.

"Both documents foresee a considerable role for the United Nations... Such important involvement will need a decision of the Security Council," he said when asked if the United States had pressed him for U.N. support of the summit agreements.

In Washington the National Association of Arab Americans welcomed President Carter's negotiating achievement at Camp David.

But it warned that Saudi Arabia and Jordan would not endorse the Camp David accords if apparent Israeli flexibility proved to be a deception.

"A critical question is whether Israeli intransigence on withdrawal from the West Bank and Gaza Strip in fact changed at Camp David or was merely repackaged," the NAAA said.

Meanwhile, the only U.S. senator who regularly defends the Arab cause predicted Tuesday that the Camp David agreements will "tip the scales overwhelmingly" in Israel's favor and lead to a major disruption within the Arab world.

Sen. James Abourezk, Democrat-South Dakota, also predicted that the separate agreement between Israel and Egypt would lead to "radicalism and all that comes with it"—presumably meaning a renewal of terrorism by pro-Palestinian groups.

Vance

the statement said: "The other Arab countries are now invited to assume their role to liberate their land in accordance with the provisions of the Camp David summit."

The statement also said that Israel's removal of Jewish settlements from Sinai was a pre-condition for the conclusion of a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel, "because the establishment of such settlements contradicts with international legitimacy."

The statement urged the Israeli parliament to "shoulder its responsibility in establishing peace" by approving the removal of the settlements, MENA added.

Camp David trumps rivals

Carter popularity seen booming

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP) — President Carter's past and future rivals for the White House, praising his high-risk venture in peacemaking, predict it will greatly enhance his popularity and re-election chances.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders, some of whom recently dismissed Carter, as likely to be a one-term president, now say he has transformed the political landscape and probably earned as much as a 25-point boost in opinion polls.

Senator William Roth, Republican-Delaware, recommended that Carter, Prime Minister Menahem Begin and President Sadat be nominated for Nobel Peace prizes.

Some Republicans suggested Carter's rising stock will "not rub off on congressional races" next month, and Senator John Tower, Republican-Texas, said that while Carter has undoubtedly improved his foreign policy image, "It doesn't get him out of the woods on a lot of domestic problems."

However, the prevailing mood as expressed by House and Senate members after Carter reported to a joint session of Congress was that the president's achievement has silenced those who painted him as a faltering and unsure leader.

"I think that with one bold stroke he has erased any image of incompetence," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd.

"There is now a presumption that the president of the United States is in charge of his affairs and that he knows what he is doing," said House Democratic leader James Wright.

Senator Edward Kennedy, mentioned with increasing frequency in recent weeks as a potential Carter challenger in 1980, said the president "has proved himself adept at dealing with a tough and complex issue, a fact the American people will surely understand and appreciate."

Vorster future in limbo after cabinet meeting

PRETORIA, Sept. 19 (R) — John Vorster Tuesday kept South Africans guessing over whether he will step down from the Prime Ministership on grounds of ill health.

He had been expected to announce his decision after briefing cabinet ministers Tuesday. But as the cabinet session stretched into an all-day affair, Vorster's press officer Neville Krige told reporters that any statement Tuesday was extremely unlikely.

"The prime minister may hold a press conference tomorrow."

Vorster has made no effort to still intense speculation that his health has deteriorated to such an extent that he and his doctors feel he can no longer stand the strain of leadership.

In the past, he has reacted strongly to any suggestion that his health is inadequate for the task, on one occasion telephoning a leading newspaper editor to berate him for reporting that he looked unwell.

It is an open secret among his colleagues that he is afflicted by a number of ailments.

Riyadh soccer said to gain 2 Kenya stars

NAIROBI, Sept. 19 (R) — A Kenyan First Division side is seeking compensation from Saudi Arabia for the loss of two key players in a Riyadh team.

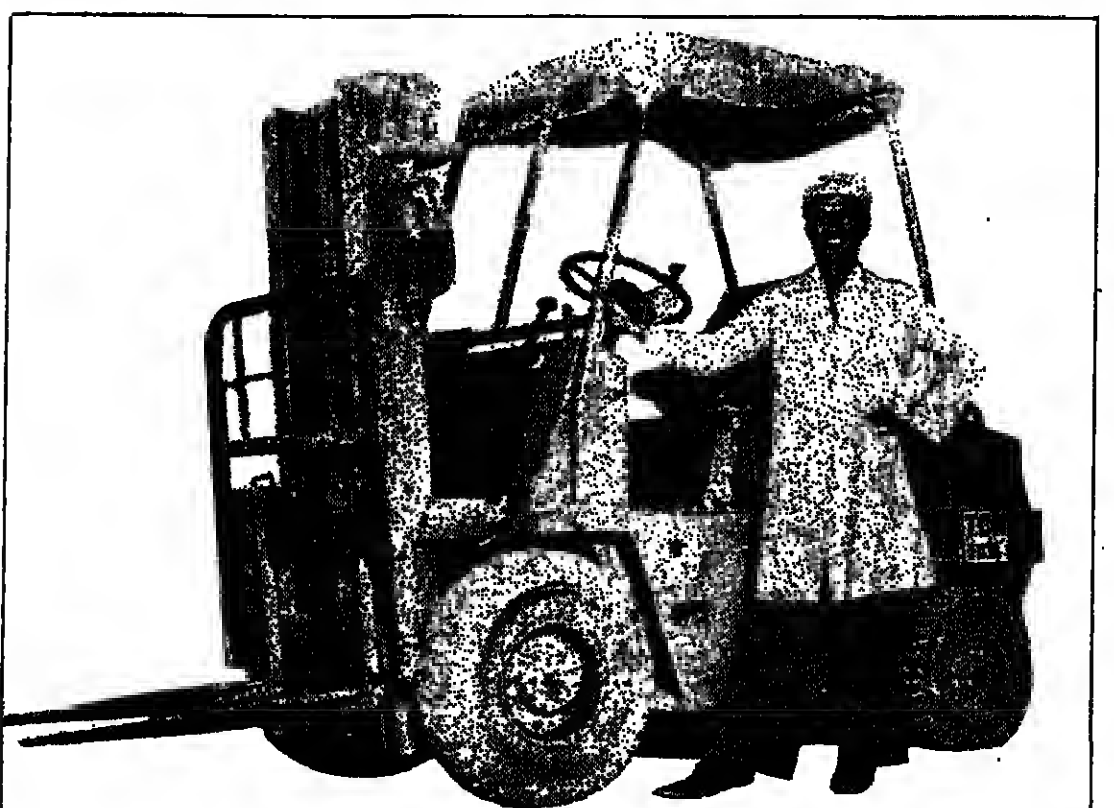

Officials of Mwenje Football Club of Mombasa, their linkman Ali Mwanga and center-half Hamed had left for Riyadh at weekend to play for a known team. The club went to Nairobi for two game matches when the vanished. Mwenje secretary Mohamed Abdullah said if their effort to get some compensation in the form of payment for the players would channel their through the Kenya Football Federation (KFF).

KFF secretary Zack M said the federation would take up the matter if Mwanga approached it. The federation is in touch with Saudi authorities over the transfer without its consent. Kenya international goalkeeper Mohamed Magogo, also a Riyadh club, Mburi has tested to the International Football Federation (IFF) about the transfer to Magogo from playing in yadh until he gets KFF permission.

Another player who Kenya for Saudi soccer, Ezi Mwakolo, received KFF permission.
